

Evaluation Report

847	208	65	28.39%	71.61%	16640
TOTAL WORDS	FULL MISTAKES	HALF MISTAKES	ERROR RATE	ACCURACY	SPEED (WPM)

Detailed Analysis (Inline Correction)

Stenoos

METRIC	COUNT	PENALTY
Correct Words	661	0
Wrong / Added	106	106
Omitted	102	102
Half Errors	65	32.5
TOTAL	934	240.5

Word-by-Word Error Breakdown

CORRECT (MASTER)	TYPED (USER)	PENALTY
the	---	1
Reference.	Reference	0.5
By	by	0.5
Terms	terms	0.5
Reference,	reference	0.5
has	had	0.5
recommendations.	recommendations	0.5
Due	due	0.5
too	to	0.5

Inline Correction:

Sir, when I take part in the discussion first of all I wish to point out that the Sarkaria Commission was not given a free hand to examine the developments which had taken place in the last 40 years in India. The main important point is (the) Terms of [Reference] (Reference.) [by] (By) the [terms] (Terms) of [reference] (Reference,) certain parameters had been fixed. Within, those parameters the Sarkaria Commission [had] (has) submitted its report. There are more than 200 [recommendations] (recommendations.) [due] (Due) to lack of time it is not possible to deal largely with all these recommendations. But at the same time the Commission has tried to find out the past history of India. The Commission has said that [to] (too) much centralisation was objected to from the Mauryan [Period] (period) to the Mughal [Period.] (period.) The Commission has stated the [fact] (fact.) [similarly] (Similarly,) [to] under the British [Rule] (rule) also centralisation was actually objected to by the people by the States. The [Founding] (founding) [Father] (fathers) of our Constitution were painfully conscious that the feeling of Indian [nation] (nationhood) [hood] was still in the making and [require] (required) to be carefully nurtured. They therefore [build] (built) a [Constitutional] (constitutional) structure with a powerful Central Government [envisage] (envisaging) the [emergence] (emergence) of an [individual] (indivisible) and [integraty] (integrated) [of] India. The concept of a strong [centre] (Centre) which is necessary to meet [Indianness] (India's) immediate needs was virtually in the later period converted (into) (the) (concept) (of) (a) (unitary) (State) (with) (priority) (for) (the) (Centre) in (all) (cases.) (This) (was) the [concept] [of] [a] [unitary] [State] [with] [priority] [for] [the] [Centre] [in] [all] [excess.] [This] [was] [the] basis of the [Members] (process) of excessive centralism with all powers in the hands of the Centre. India is developing on the path of capitalism especially monopoly capitalism. When monopoly capitalism develops in a country it is then natural that the general argument will be for centralisation [because] [they] [want] [to] [protect] [the] [interests] of the (powers) (in) (the) (hands) (of) (the) (Central) (Government) (because) (they) (want) (to) (protect) (the) (interests) (of) (the) monopoly capitalists and also help the capitalists. So that is the ~~{only}~~ (natural) [argument] (argument.) [this] (This) argument has been there for the last so many [years] (years.) [but] (But) ~~{however}~~ (over) centralisation has taken place and we know that it has taken place. What is the result ~~{now}~~ (now?) [many] (Many) are talking about (the) unity of the country about the [integraty] (integrity) of the [country] (country.) [but] (But) what has happened in the [States.] (States?) Communal forces have grown divisive forces have grown and the [integraty] (integrity) of the country has been ~~{jeopardise}~~ (jeopardised.) [when] (When) the powers were vested in the hands of the Centre, why has the Centre failed? The Khalistan [Movement] (movement) is there and there are other movements also ~~{Cessassionist}~~ (secessionist) [Movement.] (movements.) Now some people are demanding (a) Jharkhand State and then there is a demand for [a] (an) Uttarakhand State. These are all [developing] (developing.) [there] (There) was a similar demand in [Dargeeling.] (Darjeeling.) But [fortunately] (fortunately,) that has been solved [now] (now.) [but] (But) other ~~{tendeney}~~ (fissiparous) (tendencies) are ~~{going}~~ (growing,) and the Centre has not been able to control them. The Centre has not been able to prevent them. But they think that only for the Centre and not for the States that the unity of the people has to be maintained. The question of Centre State [Relations] (relations) in India is not a question ~~{concern}~~ ~~{only}~~ ~~{with}~~ ~~{the}~~ ~~{implementation}~~ ~~{of}~~ ~~{fedrall}~~ ~~{principle}~~ ~~{or}~~ ~~{with}~~ ~~{preventing}~~ ~~{the}~~ ~~{violation}~~ ~~{of}~~ ~~{those}~~ ~~{principles}~~ ~~{or}~~ ~~{suggesting}~~ ~~{a}~~ ~~{few}~~ ~~{Constitutional}~~ ~~{Amendments.}~~ ~~{But}~~ ~~{it}~~ ~~{is}~~ concerned (only) with the (implementation) (of) (federal) (principles) (or) (with) (preventing) (the) (violation) (of) (those) (principles) (or) (suggesting) (a) (few) (Constitutional) (amendments,) (but) (it) (is) (concerned) (with) (the) question ~~{with}~~ ~~{on}~~ ~~{maintaining}~~ ~~{Indian}~~ ~~{unity}~~ ~~{maintaining}~~ ~~{and}~~ ~~{consolidating}~~ ~~{the}~~ ~~{sense}~~ of (maintaining) (Indian) (unity,) (maintaining) (and) (consolidating) (the) (sense) (of) Indianness or Indian [oneness.] (oneness) ~~{Many}~~ (among) (all) (the) (constituents) of the ~~{constituents}~~ ~~{of}~~ ~~{the}~~ Indian Union with the Centre as the expression of that unity. But (for) (maintaining) (that) (unity,) (which) (has) (enabled) (us) (to) (compel) (the) (British) (to) (quit,) (the) (constituent) (units) (have) (not) (received) (any) (reward) in ~~{maintaining}~~ ~~{that}~~ ~~{unity}~~ ~~{which}~~ ~~{has}~~ ~~{enabled}~~ ~~{us}~~ ~~{to}~~ ~~{compell}~~ the ~~{British}~~ ~~{to}~~ ~~{quit}~~ ~~{the}~~ ~~{Constituents}~~ ~~{units}~~ ~~{have}~~ ~~{not}~~ ~~{received}~~ ~~{reward}~~ ~~{in}~~ ~~{the}~~ integration of the units because the [Constituents] (constituent) units ~~{consists}~~ (consisted) of big ~~{territory}~~ (territories,) each (with) (its) own language and heritage and in ~~{this}~~ (these) huge linguistic national units their linguistic identity and sense of unity grew side by side with the identity of the Union. So a deep thought has to be bestowed on how to maintain the unity with the support of the people with the support of the [States] (States.) [but] (But) that is not (the) [concern.] (concern) ~~{what}~~ (of) the Central [Government] (Government.) [the] (The) Sarkaria Commission has been able to make certain recommendations within certain [parameters] (parameters.) [even] (Even) within those parameters two recommendations are there. One is that it is neither [adviceable] (advisable) nor necessary to make (any) drastic change in the basic character of the Constitution. The second is that the electoral system can be continued like [this] (this.) [in] (In) the second [recommendation.] (recommendation,) [The] (the) Commission says that it certainly calls for improvement and reform in a number of aspects. The actual working of the Constitution leaves much to be [desired] (desired.) [it] (It) has said about the changes proposed in the financial aspects of the Indian Union and the States. The arrangements are far from being [satisfactory] (satisfactory.) [it] (It) has said about the role of (the) Governors reservation of State [Bill] (Bills) for consideration of the President use of extraordinary powers ~~{given}~~ [etc.] (etc.,) etc. The Commission has said about the Inter Governmental Council with a comprehensive size. It has said about a National Economic Development Council having (a) nexus with the Planning Commission ~~{.}~~ [Limitation] (limitation) of the [centrally] (Centrally) sponsored schemes State [Finance] (finance) and [Planning] (planning,) [etc.] (etc.,) etc.

Legend:

~~{Full Mistake}~~ (Correct) = Substituted/Wrong Word (Red/Green)

[Half Mistake] (Correct) = Spelling/Punctuation Error (Yellow/Orange)

(Omitted Word) = Word you missed

~~{Added Word}~~ = Extra word you added

Original Master Passage:

Sir, when I take part in the discussion, first of all, I wish to point out that the Sarkaria Commission was not given a free hand to examine the developments which had taken place in the last 40 years in India. The main important point is the Terms of Reference. By the Terms of Reference, certain parameters had been fixed. Within those parameters, the Sarkaria Commission has submitted its report. There are more than 200 recommendations. Due to lack of time, it is not possible to deal largely with all these recommendations. But, at the same time, the Commission has tried to find out the past history of India. The Commission has said that too much centralisation was objected to from the Mauryan period to the Mughal period. The Commission has stated the fact. Similarly, under the British rule also, centralisation was actually objected to by the people by the States. The founding fathers of our Constitution were painfully conscious that the feeling of Indian nationhood was still in the making and required to be carefully nurtured. They, therefore, built a constitutional structure with a powerful Central Government envisaging the emergence of an indivisible and integrated India. The concept of a strong Centre which is necessary to meet India's immediate needs was virtually, in the later period, converted into the concept of a unitary State with priority for the Centre in all cases. This was the basis of the process of excessive centralism, with all powers in the hands of the Centre. India is developing on the path of capitalism, especially monopoly capitalism. When monopoly capitalism develops in a country, it is then natural that the general argument will be for centralisation of the powers in the hands of the Central Government because they want to protect the interests of the monopoly capitalists and also help the capitalists. So, that is the natural argument. This argument has been there for the last so many years. But over centralisation has taken place and we know that it has taken place. What is the result now? Many are talking about the unity of the country, about the integrity of the country. But what has happened in the States? Communal forces have grown, divisive forces have grown, and the integrity of the country has been jeopardised. When the powers were vested in the hands of the Centre, why has the Centre failed? The Khalistan movement is there, and there are other movements also, secessionist movements. Now, some people are demanding a Jharkhand State, and then there is a demand for an Uttarakhand State. These are all developing. There was a similar demand in Darjeeling. But fortunately, that has been solved now. But other fissiparous tendencies are growing, and the Centre has not been able to control them. The Centre has not been able to prevent them. But they think that only for the Centre, and not for the States, that the unity of the people has to be maintained. The question of Centre State relations in India is not a question concerned only with the implementation of federal principles or with preventing the violation of those principles or suggesting a few Constitutional amendments, but it is concerned with the question of maintaining Indian unity, maintaining and consolidating the sense of Indianness or Indian oneness among all the constituents of the Indian Union with the Centre as the expression of that unity. But for maintaining that unity, which has enabled us to compel the British to quit, the constituent units have not received any reward in the integration of the units because the constituent units consisted of big territories, each with its own language and heritage, and in these huge linguistic national units, their linguistic identity and sense of unity grew side by side with the identity of the Union. So, a deep thought has to be bestowed on how to maintain the unity with the support of the people, with the support of the States. But that is not the concern of the Central Government. The Sarkaria Commission has been able to make certain recommendations within certain parameters. Even within those parameters, two recommendations are there. One is that it is neither advisable nor necessary to make any drastic change in the basic character of the Constitution. The second is that the electoral system can be continued like this. In the second recommendation, the Commission says that it certainly calls for improvement and reform in a number of aspects. The actual working of the Constitution leaves much to be desired. It has said about the changes proposed in the financial aspects of the Indian Union and the States. The arrangements are far from being satisfactory. It has said about the role of the Governors, reservation of State Bills for consideration of the President, use of extraordinary powers, etc., etc. The Commission has said about the Inter Governmental Council with a comprehensive size. It has said about a National Economic Development Council having a nexus with the Planning Commission, limitation of the Centrally sponsored schemes, State finance and planning, etc., etc.

Candidate's Typed Matter:

Sir, when I take part in the discussion first of all I wish to point out that the Sarkaria Commission was not given a free hand to examine the developments which had taken place in the last 40 years in India. The main important point is Terms of Reference by the terms of reference certain parameters had been fixed. Within, those parameters the Sarkaria Commission had submitted its report. There are more than 200 recommendations due to lack of time it is not possible to deal largely with all these recommendations. But at the same time the Commission has tried to find out the past history of India. The Commission has said that too much centralisation was objected to from the Mauryan Period to the Mughal Period. The Commission has stated the fact similarly to under the British Rule also centralisation was actually objected to by the people by the States. The Founding Father of our Constitution were painfully conscious that the feeling of Indian nationhood was still in the making and require to be carefully nurtured. They therefore build a Constitutional structure with a powerful Central Government envisage the emergence of an individual and integrity of India. The concept of a strong centre which is necessary to meet Indianness immediate needs was virtually in the later period converted in the concept of a unitary State with priority for the Centre in all excess. This was the basis of the Members of excessive centralism with all powers in the hands of the Centre. India is developing on the path of capitalism especially monopoly capitalism. When monopoly capitalism develops in a country it is then natural that the general argument will be for centralisation because they want to protect the interests of the monopoly capitalists and also help the capitalists. So that is the only argument this argument has been there for the last so many years but however centralisation has taken place and we know that it has taken place. What is the result now many are talking about unity of the country about the integrity of the country but what has happened in the States. Communal forces have grown divisive forces have grown and the integrity of the country has been jeopardise when the powers were vested in the hands of the Centre, why has the Centre failed? The Khalistan Movement is there and there are other movements also Cessationist Movement. Now some people are demanding Jharkhand State and then there is a demand for a Uttarakhand State. These are all developing there was a similar demand in Dargeeling. But fortunately that has been solved now but other tendency are going and the Centre has not been able to control them. The Centre has not been able to prevent them. But they think that only for the Centre and not for the States that the unity of the people has to be maintained. The question of Centre State Relations in India is not a question concern only with the implementation of federal principle or with preventing the violation of those principles or suggesting a few Constitutional Amendments. But it is concerned with the question with on maintaining Indian unity maintaining and consolidating the sense of Indianness or Indian oneness. Many of the constituents of the Indian Union with the Centre as the expression of that unity. But in maintaining that unity which has enabled us to compell the British to quit the Constituents units have not received reward in the integration of the units because the Constituents units consists of big territory each own language and heritage and in this huge linguistic national units their linguistic identity and sense of unity grew side by side with the identity of the Union. So a deep thought has to be bestowed on how to maintain the unity with the support of the people with the support of the States but that is not concern. What the Central Government the Sarkaria Commission has been able to make certain recommendations within certain parameters even within those parameters two recommendations are there. One is that it is neither adviceable nor necessary to make drastic change in the basic character of the Constitution. The second is that the electoral system can be continued like this in the second recommendation. The Commission says that it certainly calls for improvement and reform in a number of aspects. The actual working of the Constitution leaves much to be desired it has said about the changes proposed in the financial aspects of the Indian Union and the States. The arrangements are far from being satisfactory it has said about the role of Governors reservation of State Bill for consideration of the President use of extraordinary powers given etc. etc. The Commission has said about the Inter Governmental Council with a comprehensive size. It has said about a National Economic Development Council having nexus with the Planning Commission . Limitation of the centrally sponsored schemes State Finance and Planning etc. etc.
